

Task 7b Building the database

You should now have a design for the database – you are now ready to build an electronic version.

Work from this design and using Microsoft Access build a table with suitable data types, field lengths and validation rules. Remember to take screen prints of how you have created your database and annotate them to explain each stage of development.

Once your database table is ready, you should be able to key in your research collected in task 4.